

Publishing Company Opens New Warehouse in “Book City”

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

November 13, 2025

Chattanooga, TN - Library Ideas, LLC, a sixteen-year-old publishing company dedicated to promoting literacy and lifelong learning, has announced the opening of its new worldwide distribution and data center hub in Chattanooga, Tennessee.

The new 31,000 square foot facility at 1859 Polk Street will serve as the company’s global operations center, supporting libraries, schools, and United States military bases in more than 25 countries. This expansion marks a major milestone for Library Ideas and is expected to create dozens of new jobs in the Chattanooga area.

The facility is already fulfilling and shipping orders of VOX Books, the company’s flagship publishing product. VOX Books are the world’s first audiobooks that live in print books. Each title features a permanently attached VOX Reader that transforms an ordinary picture book into an all-in-one read-along experience that helps children learn to read through listening and engagement.

The VOX Books collection now includes more than 1,500 titles in 20 languages, inspiring young readers around the world to fall in love with books that talk.

“Literacy is at the heart of everything we do,” said Rob Richmond, CTO of Library Ideas. “This new Chattanooga facility will allow us to expand our mission of inspiring readers and supporting libraries and schools across the world, from right here in my hometown of Chattanooga.”

Will O’Hearn, Director of the Chattanooga Public Library, added, “We love VOX Books and love the literacy that they promote.”

With this investment, Library Ideas strengthens its commitment to education and community development, establishing Chattanooga as the worldwide hub for its publishing, distribution, and data operations. This is a fitting addition to a city celebrated for its innovation, creativity, and love of learning.
